Just Horizons - Building Future Ready Courts,

Dr. Pamela Casey, National Center for State Courts

For two years, the Just Horizons initiative, led by a Council of court leaders and scholars, explored driving forces of change in society and identified six key areas of vulnerability that could impact courts in the future. The Council's report (website) highlights the urgency of building future ready courts focused on these areas to ensure a resilient and robust functioning court system no matter how the future unfolds. This session will discuss the six areas of vulnerability and the need for combined action at the local, state, and national level to drive change at the speed and scale needed for courts to thrive in our fast-moving, hyper-connected, and complex world.

AI & Deep Fakes: Current Threat Landscape and Legal Issues

Professor Daniel Shin, William & Mary Law School

Since early 2018, deepfakes have evolved beyond face-swapped videos to other media domains, including fully synthetic videos, audio, images, and even text data. This presentation presents an overview of the current deepfake threat landscape with a special emphasis on publicly available deepfake tools. Afterward, the session will explore legal issues impacted by deepfake technologies, such as the unconsented representation of individuals (e.g., unconsented pornography) and growing issues concerning the authentication of digital evidence.
